

BEFORE AND AFTER TOYNBEE

Conceiving the Industrial Revolution During the Long Nineteenth Century

A ONE-DAY SYMPOSIUM

Keynote address by Donald Winch

Cambridge
Victorian
Studies
Group

23 September 2010, Newnham College, Cambridge

Free attendance, lunch and refreshments

To register, email industrialrevolution2010@gmail.com

For more information go to <http://www.victorians.group.cam.ac.uk>

Before and After Toynbee:
Conceiving the Industrial Revolution during the long nineteenth century

A one-day symposium hosted by the Cambridge Victorian Studies Group
Lucia Windsor room, Newnham College, Thursday 23 September 2010

- 0930 Arrival and Coffee
- 1000-1100 KEYNOTE - DONALD WINCH
- 1100-1130 Break
- 1130-1300 PANEL 1 - Chair: Gareth Stedman Jones (Cambridge)
- Making Sense of the Origins of the Industrial Revolution Idea*
William Hardy (Open University)
- Contested Industrialisation: The Aswan Dam and the English Garden*
Caspar Andersen (Aarhus, Denmark)
- Industrial Revolution or Urban Revolution?*
Chris Ferguson (Auburn, Alabama, U.S.A.)
- 1300-1400 Lunch
- 1400-1515 PANEL 2 - Chair: William Ashworth (Liverpool)
- Inventors of the Industrial Revolution in the Oxford Dictionary of National Biography*
Christine MacLeod (Bristol)
- Do You Want the Dust? James Watt's workshop & the engineer as hero
Ben Russell (Science Museum)
- 1515-1545 Tea
- 1545-1650 PANEL 3 - Chair: Jos Betts (Cambridge)
- Making Sense of Industrial Turmoil: The concept of Applied Science*
Robert Bud (Science Museum)
- God's plans for Victorian Industry*
Nick Fisher (Aberdeen)
- 1700-1800 ROUNDTABLE DISCUSSION
- 1800-1900 Drinks